

The Key Is On The Left

The key is on the left
and I start the engine.

The sun is shining
and I open the top

The music is louder
than the engine sounds.
I'm on the road to the office
where only time is that counts.

There I do this and I do that,
'know it doesn't make a sence.
All things are for the others
I don't do things for myself.

I work through the day
without any care.
Doze in front of my computer
and build castles in the air.

Receive my money for nothing
but waisting my lifetime.
Think about to excape
the daily's hamster wheel.

I'm glad to leave that bunker
with it's neon lights.
Forget the last hours
and going down to my car.

The key is on the left
and I start the engine.
The sun is shining
and I open the top.

The music is louder
than the engine sounds.
I'm on my way to hometown
there is life that counts.
