

The Time Does Not Heal All Wounds

If you lose a good thing,
or you lose a loved person,
or a love breaks,
then time does not heal your wounds.
The Time only relieves the pain.

If you have been reviled,
or if you have been humiliated,
or someone has made fun of you,
then time does not heal your wounds.
The Time only relieves the pain.

A wound needs time to heal well but time passes much too quickly.
Therefore, time does not heal all wounds,
it only relieves the pain.
Often only slightly,
so that the remaining pain
slowly breaks you down.

If you don't reach a goal for that you have fought for a very long time or someone has stolen your success,
then time does not heal your wounds.
The Time only relieves your pain.

And if you have lost your very dearest one in this world,
then, yes then you won't need no time any more,
Because then it only makes your pain bigger.
Then it makes your pain bigger and bigger.
The time makes your pain so great,
that your heart will break
and you finally die from it.

Well, the time just does not heal all wounds!
and the scars remain forever.
